State Industries.

Our exchanges, to a man, have ably advocated the non-imposition of tax on manufacturing industries.

Their object is, of course, to induce capital into our State.

We favor it, but we respectfully suggest the germ of the evil is not touched yet.

We have just got to help ourselves.

We have got to produce more than we consume.

We have got to live more within our means.

Extravagance follows in the wake of all wars.

The mud-sills of domestic economy are washed up.

We are no exception.

We overtrade. Breadcloth has too much taken the place of home-spun.

In olden times a well-to-do farmer opened his eyes in holy horror if his store account exceeded $100.

Now, if an unknown (commercially) farmer runs one plow, he can easily get credit for two or three times that amount.

He buys everything he uses, and at the end of the year he either falls short of paying up, or he has nothing left after settling his bills.

Still, he would tell you he is economical as possible.

He is never economical until he lays up something.

It is a common thing to see a man ditching or plowing with gaiters on.

With prosperity will, naturally, come capital to build up our waste places; to open up our hidden resources; to utilize our vast wealth of water power.

A thrifty community will always catch the eye of the capitalist.

Now, Southern investments are at a heavy discount at the North.

We heard one of our most prominent townsmen say, he tried to negotiate a loan in Baltimore, even, on security, three times as valuable as the sum asked.

The reply was, we do no business in the South of that sort.

Disfranchisement for Crime.

The convention has passed an ordinance disfranchising persons convicted of crime.

This will not be opposed very bitterly by the honest portion of the community.

The ballot is too important a privilege to be ruthlessly entrusted to the keeping of convicts.

This ordinance cures the cases of those convicted of felonies, or submitting in open court.

Its effect will be to place a premium on honesty.

We would rather have the disability to terminate by limitation according to aggravation of the crime committed.

We would always hold out reform.

Journalistic Change.

Mr. F. Brevard McDowell a lawyer of Charlotte has purchased half interest in the Daily Observer of Col. C. R. Jones.

The Press and newspaper reading public will miss Capt. W. F. Avery's spice, dash and glow.

But this spirited Daily will keep on delighting its readers under its present able management.

Long may it Twinkle.

The Wilmington Daily Star scintillates brightly down its Seventeenth volume.

It is one of our liveliest and most valued exchanges.

Ordinance to strike out sec. 33, art. 4 of the Constitution. Deprives the Magistrates of jurisdiction under the present laws, and leaves the matter of arranging their jurisdiction in the hands of the Legislature.

Mr. Manning of Graham, moved an amendment giving the right of appeal in all cases decided by the Justices of the Peace, extending the jurisdiction of the Justices to civil actions where the value of property in controversy does not exceed $80. Adopted.

The ordinance thus amended then passed its third reading.—Raleigh News.

Adjournment of the Convention.

After a session of 31 working days the Convention adjourned on Monday evening at 6 o'clock. We will publish the Constitution in full as soon as it can be procured.

The East and Her Needs.
We clip the following from the Wilmington Journal.
It is a clear putting of our case. We could not improve on it, if we would, and would not if we could.

We welcome the able assistance that the Newbern Journal of Commerce, the Albemarle Times, the Tarboro Southerner, and the Roanoke News are rendering us in calling the attention of the Convention to the sufferings of the negro counties of the East. Without relief, which this body alone can give us, we are indeed, without hope. Surely, our people of the western and middle portions of the State, will not leave us longer a prey to the ignorant and corrupt men who are robbing and impoverishing us! Relief is a vital necessity with us, and in the name of justice and humanity, we appeal to our friends for it. In ourselves, we are powerless, and our sufferings are past endurance.

Upon this subject the Roanoke News, in the course of an able argument, says:

Now we propose to speak plainly, so long as the system of county government is continued, there is great danger of the negroes and their allies controlling the politics of the State. If the white men of Eastern North Carolina, had been divided like the white men of Western North Carolina, the State could never have been rescued from the hands of the corrupt men who well brought her to ruin. But the white men of the East, although absolutely excluded from all political preferment, have adhered to principle with a fidelity not surpassed in the history of the United States, and have voted, almost as a unit, for the Conservative nominees. This county gave Maximilian for Governor the highest white vote it has ever polled; it did not poll more than twenty-five white votes against him. We think he had the highest white vote ever polled in the East, and the loss of his election must be attributed to the defection of the West.

The state of things cannot always consent to be hewers of wood and drawers of water for their more fortunate Western fellow-citizens. But for the hope that their Western friends would reward their fidelity by rescuing them from negro thralldom, they never would have advocated the call of a Convention. But for this hope the Wilmington Journal we are sure, would never have inaugurated the agitation of the question, which it so zealously and ably conducted, calling to its aid the advocacy of some of the most prominent men of the State, and we now beg to say to our Western friends, that if they fail us in this hope, they had better, for the best interest of the State, never to have assembled in Convention.

We ask nothing that is not consistent with the wisest principles of government. We ask, only, that power of county government, and that Judicial system, which we lived under so happily for nearly one hundred years. If all the complaints made by the West in times gone by, she never included what we now ask in the catalogue, and surely we impose no hardship upon her, in asking her to restore that which cannot injure her, and is essential to our prosperity, contentment and safety.

A very slight defection of the white men of the East would give the State to the Radicals. If the present system is continued that defection must come. If the white men of the West, turn a deaf ear to the prayers of their brethren of the East, then the latter must make the best terms they can with the negroes, for to continue as they are now, is simply unendurable. If they had craved their official position, if they had craved the "flesh pots," they might, in the beginning, have controlled the negroes, or at least, have obtained "better terms," and it is not too late yet.

"Honesty is the best policy," and we have deemed it our imperative duty to speak plainly. We beg now to express the opinion, that if the present system of county government is reformed in the particulars complained of, the work of the Convention will be voted down, and the State lost to the Conservatives in 1876.
